School board apparently violates state Open Meetings Law again

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
The Hancock County School Board Saturday morning apparently again violated the state Open Meetings Law in discussing the school district's financial and transportation budget in executive session.

At an April 19 meeting the board discussed a district-wide classroom building program and finances for the program.

At a secret session which was also an apparent violation of the state law, the board discussed the school district's financial and transportation budget with Edward Carter, who is employed as the district transportation clerk.

But general budget discussions are apparently not included in state criteria for closed meetings of public bodies unless specific employee termination or hiring is to be discussed.

All board members, Board Attorney Joseph Cox, Superintendent of Education Billy Sills and Carter were allowed in the secret meeting.

David Kopf of Carthage, who was later in the open meeting approved as the new school principal, attended the first and last few minutes of the closed session.

In other business at the open portion of the 9 a.m. recess meeting at the Dan M. Russell Sr. Memorial Youth Court Center in Bay St. Louis, the board:

—Accepted the resignation of HNC eighth-grade science teacher Charles Caldwell. Sills explained Caldwell is assuming a teaching position in Louisiana where he will be paid $4,000 more per year, receive free hospitalization insurance and reimbursement for continuing his education.

—Approved a new teacher sick leave policy as recommended by Sills.

—Approved releasing ninth-grade student Denise Bourg of Diamondhead from the district so she may attend Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District schools.

—Formed a Transportation Committee consisting of Board Members George and Woodrow Lader, Sills and Carter as recommended by Cuevas.

—Took no action regarding Sills' request for a teaching staff reduction policy.

Attorneys counter statements about jailed White Cypress man

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
Attorneys representing a White Cypress Community man being held in Hancock County Jail Friday countered various statements reported about their client.

Joseph W. Perry, 40, of Route 1, Box 325-C, Pass Christian has been held in jail almost three weeks after his June 7 arrest at Stennis International Airport by a host of heavily armed local, state and federal law enforcement agents.

The law enforcement officials arrested Perry based on a National Crime Information Network bulletin which reported he was wanted in connection with a 1977 robbery of a Michigan Secretary of State branch office in Birmingham.

Attorneys Henry Cook III and Jane Sharp, both of the Bay St. Louis law firm of Cook, Peterson and Sharp, said Friday that Perry is fighting extradition to Michigan.

They also refuted Hancock Sheriff Ronald Peterson's statement that Perry is fighting extradition to Michigan.

Sharp explained Perry waived extradition, but is not fighting extradition because those proceedings have not yet been filed.

Cook stated, "The only charge against Perry at this time is possession of less than one ounce of marijuana which does not require any jail term, but a maximum $200 fine may be imposed."

The attorney also noted he is not a public defender as previously reported by The Sea Coast Echo, but his firm is retained by Perry as legal counsel.

However, Peterson Friday said Michigan will issue extradition proceedings, but frequently several weeks are needed to process all paperwork involved.

He explained a Michigan district attorney must initiate extradition proceedings by a request to that state's governor who in turn issues a formal request to Mississippi's governor who then notifies the sheriff's department with extradition notice to extradite the prisoner.

When Perry was charged he was advised of his rights and the right to waive extradition or to be taken back to Michigan.

Sharp explained since Perry waived extradition, Michigan law requires he be held at least 30 days and a bond amount must be set. Michigan issues a warrant for his arrest.

"We have no explanation for the Michigan charge and the (Perry) was never indicted in that state," she stated.

Peterson reports there may be delays in the extradition proceedings because a witness in the Michigan crime is apparently in prison.

Sharp said Perry recently checked Federal Bureau of Investigation records to make sure he was not wanted in any state.

She noted an FBI Identification Division "rap sheet" of Perry's criminal activity lists that he was arrested in 1969 in San Diego, Calif. based on a Missouri warrant for his arrest.

"Perry posted bond, went back to Missouri, was questioned and they let him go," Sharp stated.

The attorney said in 1962 Perry was arrested for writing a check on a closed account.

She reported he received a 30-day suspended sentence and successfully completed two years probation.

Beginning in 1969, Perry served two years for interstate transportation of stolen automobiles, Sharp said.

And in 1967 he was charged with forgery and desertion from the Army. The forgery charges were dropped, but

Pearlington home strafed by gunfire

By ELLIS CUEVAS
A Pearlington residence was blasted with 38-caliber slugs early Friday morning according to Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson.

The sheriff said, "The dispatcher received a call at 3:35 a.m. from Louis Mettranga, Hwy. 604, Pearlington reporting he was awakened by loud noises and noted several windows broken."

"Capt. Paul Bernard and Deputy Greg Hammer went to the scene and found bullet holes through eight windows, window frames with holes in addition to one hole through the rear window of a car in the yard," Peterson added.

Hancock Investigator Delbert Seay is in charge of the case and reports 18 bullets which were fired from a 38-caliber gun struck the home and car in the yard.

Seay said Saturday there are no leads in the shooting incident and it is still under investigation.

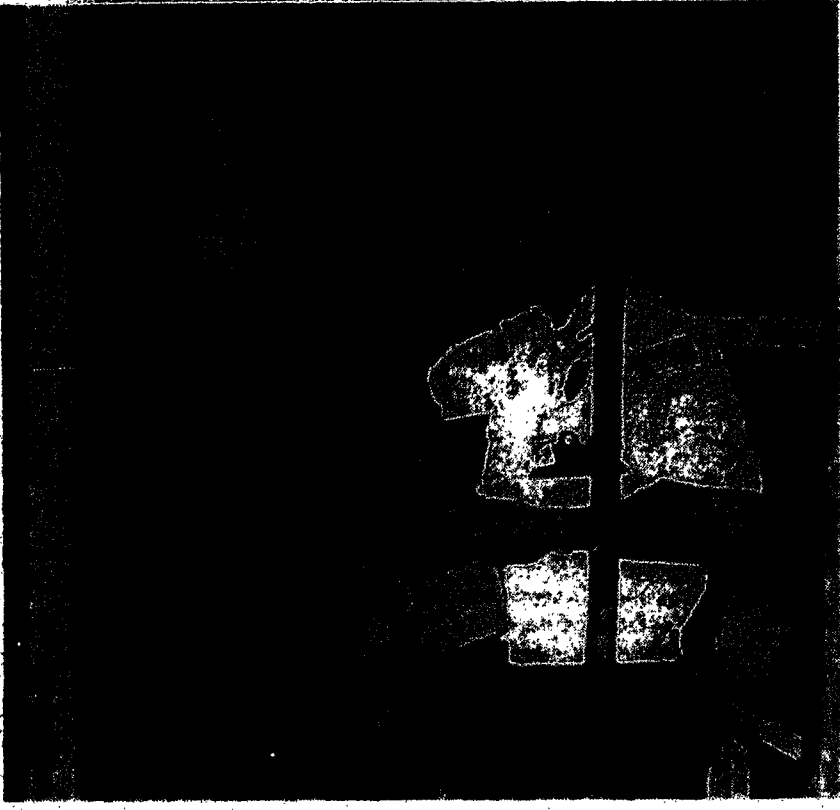

TRUCK TIRES STOLEN

One person has been arrested in connection with two incidents of four tires being stolen from the International Paper Co.'s wood yard in Kiln, Peterson reports.

"John E. Neace, 18, P.O. Box 141, Bay St. Louis was arrested by Seay and Deputy Nathan Hoda on Thursday and is charged with two counts of grand larceny for allegedly taking four truck tires and wheels on the night of June 20 and also taking four several weeks earlier," Peterson stated.

The last missing tires, valued at $1,000, were reported by Larry Frierison, yard foreman, as being taken between 4 p.m. on June 20 and the next morning, police say.

Two-alarm blaze damages Bay home

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

A two-alarm fire of a yet undetermined origin Friday burned about four rooms of a Bay St. Louis home and caused smoke, heat and water damage throughout the residence.

Chief Andrew Lizana of the Bay St. Louis Fire Department Friday afternoon said the cause of a blaze which heavily damaged the Niles B. Miller residence at 222 St. Charles St. has not yet been determined.

Lizana reported the house fire apparently originated in a utility room.

Firefighters were summoned by a neighbor's telephone call at 11:13 a.m., the chief said at the fire scene.

"When we arrived, smoke was coming from under the eaves of the home and four rooms were in flames," he stated.

Lizana said all members of the Niles family were away from home at the time of the blaze.

The firefighters extinguished the fire in about 20 minutes, but department personnel remained at the scene for several hours pulling smoldering material from the home and dousing hot spots which could have rekindled the fire, the chief reported.

Lizana pointed out several holes chopped in the home's ceiling which were necessary to vent smoke from the structure.

He noted where the fire burned numerous wooden structural beams, primarily in an apparent addition to the residence.

The chief also pointed out where asbestos-cement siding inside on the original portion of the home helped retard heat of flames.

Two fire department pumps responded to the scene manned by 13 firefighters and one volunteer.

Waveland and Diamondhead Fire Departments each sent one firefighter and the East Hancock Volunteer Fire Department sent three volunteers.

Chief Douglas Williams of the Bay Police Department and Mayor Larry Bennett also assisted in the fire battle.

Thunderstorm knocks out radio

By ELLIS CUEVAS

A crash of lightning during a Saturday afternoon thunderstorm apparently damaged the transmitter of the communications in the Hancock County sheriff's office according to Dispatcher Linda Sands.

The dispatcher said, "We are now having to go through Waveland's radio for communication with the sheriff's deputies. We are able to receive from the patrolmen, but are unable to send messages to them with our transmitter."

Earlier a waterspout set down in the Sound off-Terrace Street, Waveland turning over a sailboat according to Waveland Patrolman John Wilkerson.

A spokesman for the department later reported there were no injuries in the incident.

The water spout seen as far away as Bay St. Louis was investigated by Wilkerson, Waveland Investigator Sandra Henley, Patrolman Veronica Hattabaugh, Hancock County Firefighters and Hancock Deputy Glen Jackson.

Council considering joining city, county tax departments

By BRENT MACEY
The City of Bay St. Louis is considering combining its tax department with the Hancock County Tax Collector's office.

City Clerk Roddy Favre, who was directed by the Hancock County Tax Collector's office to study the matter, said the council is considering a plan to have the city's tax department merged with the county's.

Favre said the plan would be a feasibility study concerning how much money the city could save by combining the city's tax department with the county's.

"Currently the city allocates some $100,000 to the tax department," Favre said.

"I don't mind my decision, I have nothing to do with it. It's up to the city fathers and the supervisors. If they want us to do it then they would have to tell us what they wanted us to do," he said.

He noted the combined departments would mean additional work for his department, but he said, "We wouldn't be compensated for it."

Long time on the department would apparently not be a problem, Mettranga noted the most serious problem can now be handled by the county.

money are forwarded to each city.

In addition, the county handles all homestead exemptions for the cities.

Estelle Johnston, head of the Bay St. Louis Tax Department, stated the city must perform other duties independently from the county.

All property assessed at the county at 15 percent is assessed by the city tax office at 30 percent.

The department collects all city taxes.

Also, privileged licenses for businesses in the city must be obtained through the city department.

John Mettranga, head of the county tax department, said the city is also considering having that data incorporated into the tax bills.

Mettranga complained that a city tax collector would have to go out and collect the taxes.

2,500 mile canoe trip ends in Bay St. Louis

By JENNIFER M. ALLEN
A 2,500-mile canoe trip that began in the heart of the Mississippi Delta ended in Bay St. Louis on Friday, June 25, 1982. Bill Allen, 40, of Bay St. Louis, stepped ashore at 10:30 a.m. after a 2,500-mile journey down the Mississippi by canoe.

A slim, smiling man, Allen, who met and married his wife along the way, noted that the trip was everything he hoped for—adventure, excitement, romance, everything.

Allen, who was an anchorman for WOIV in Grand Rapids, Michigan for 18 years, started his adventure May 14, 1980 at the headwaters of the Mississippi River at Lake Itasca, located some 500 miles north of St. Paul, Minn.

"The river in that area is some 10 to 15 feet wide," Allen said.

"I couldn't turn my canoe around sideways," he said.

Allen noted he traveled the entire distance in a 16 and one-half foot "Mad River" canoe. The canoe was loaned to him by a Vermont based company with the same name.

The craft is constructed of kevlar, similar to fiberglass, and the boat weighed 57 pounds.

According to Allen, the river was clean at the beginning of the trip.

"It didn't take long before it started getting junky," he stated.

Allen noted he first discovered beer bottles and cans on the river bottom shortly after the trip began.

Later, he would encounter sewerage and industrial waste spilling into the Mississippi.

The river would also widen considerably. Allen noted one of the widest parts is in Cairo, Ill., where the Illinois River meets the Mississippi.

"It looks almost like a lake, but it's all river," he said.

Allen apparently found the waters south of Baton Rouge the most polluted.

"From Baton Rouge on down it was highly industrial. It was really very depressing."

But to Allen, the pollution was the only depressing part of the trip.

"The people I met were unbelievable," he said.

Many, intrigued by Allen's adventure, offered him food and lodging during the journey.

"I think it has something to do with the spontaneity. River people are cut from the same cloth. Their love for the river and water transcends all boundaries. The people I met really opened their hearts to me."

He explained that he met his wife through her son. The young man had written Allen requesting to be taken along on the trip.

Allen wanted to travel alone, but he wrote back and told the young man that he would stop and visit him in the Elsie, Ill.—the young man's home town.

When Allen arrived, the young man was in college. Allen met the young man's mother instead.

"The rest is history," he said.

He was married Christmas Eve, after leaving his canoe near Memphis and traveling back up the river.

Allen said he never camped out before adventuring down the Mississippi.

"I'd only camped during the day," he said about his outdoor adventures before tackling the Mississippi.

Allen stated he always wanted to travel, even before he retired.

"I thought it (the trip down the Mississippi) would be a lot of fun," he said.

Currently he is undecided on whether he will write a book about his adventure.

He noted he may canoe some rivers in Europe with his wife. And he hasn't ruled out canoeing the Mississippi again.

He noted, "It's a charming way to meet people."

The interest in the changing of Mississippi's Mineral Laws has gotten a lot of attention in Hancock County in recent weeks.

This is a law which has come to the attention of many folks especially with the activity in oil exploration in recent years. To us it looks like there would be a national law that would cover every state.

If a person would check who owns the majority of the mineral rights in Hancock County, we have a tendency to feel it would only be a small percentage of the landowners.

In other words, the average homeowner does not own the mineral rights

Bill Whitfield, agriculture committee chairman of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce has an interesting Farm City tour planned for Thursday, July 22.

The annual event sponsored by the chamber and the Hancock County Farm Bureau and Extension Service is one which has been really enjoyed by those taking advantage of the tour.

We hope many will make their reservations by calling the chamber office at 467-9048.

A check at the Hancock County Farmers Market yesterday revealed a host of local farmers with all types of fresh produce. Many residents visit the local market on Wednesday and Saturday to buy such items as tomatoes, beans, corn, peppers, greens, potatoes, and on and on.

If you are new to the area, the farmers Market is located at the Fairgrounds on Longfellow near the National Guard Armory.

OLD-STYLE POLITICS THREATEN REGULATORY REFORM

This is the story of "old-time politics" 1982 style. It is the story of a small group in the leadership of the majority party in the House of Representatives which has consistently frustrated the will of the majority in both the House and the Senate to bring about meaningful reform of government regulations.

The Omnibus Regulatory Reform Act is now before the House. It passed the Senate late last year 90-0. In fact, some version of regulatory reform has been considered by Congress since 1975. The Senate passed a reform package in 1979. The legislation has had at least 250 co-sponsors each time it has been introduced in the House. Yet, to this day, the House leadership has kept regulatory reform from coming to a vote.

This year's bill could pass the House with between 275 and 300 votes, according to Capitol Hill observers. But it has not come up, and it will not come up at least until the middle of July.

It would be fair for the reader to ask why the roadblocks? The reason the leadership won't bring the reform legislation to a vote is because of a provision in the bill for legislative veto. That is a provision which would give Congress the power to reject any rule or regulation that goes beyond the original intent of the law. (Congress does not write rules; government bureaucrats do.)

BE A GOOD CITIZEN:

People tend to litter where litter has already accumulated. Throwing trash from an automobile—be it a glass bottle, a metal container, or paper products—is like saying to someone else: throw yours, it's alright. Litter is always ugly.

Hancock County Chamber of Commerce
Clean-Up and Beautification Committee

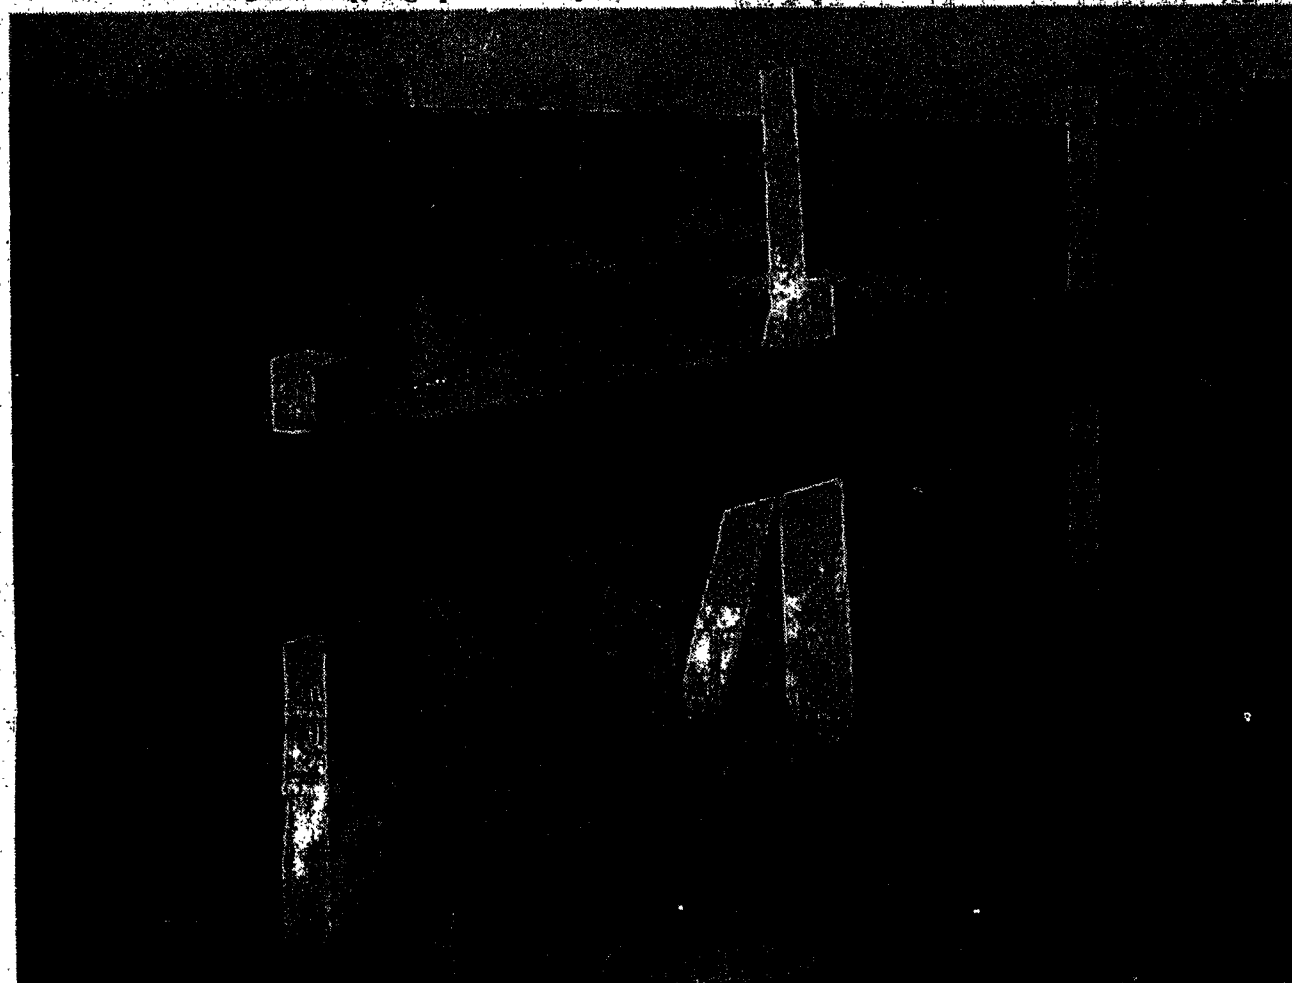

For small business, legislative veto would provide an avenue of appeal which does not now exist. Corporations have lawyers, statisticians, computers and the money to carry their cases directly to the regulators. The small-business person does not. But legislative veto permits anyone who thinks a regulation would cause undue hardship to say so to elected representatives in Washington.

Members of the National Federation of Independent Business, in surveys dating back to 1974, have called excessive government regulation one of their main economic problems. But powerful members of the house leadership oppose legislative veto, and, thus far have successfully rebuffed attempts to bring regulatory-reform legislation to a vote.

When Congress convenes after the Independence Day recess, there will be but 10 working weeks before adjournment for elections. If the House leadership does not yield to the majority of the members and bring the regulatory-reform bill to a vote by early August, regulatory-reform legislation—and legislative veto—will have died in yet another Congress. And another sorry commentary will have been written about old-style politics.

(Wilson S. Johnson is president of the National Federation of Independent Business, representing more than half a million small-business men and women.)

SPRUCE UP-Barricades along Beach Boulevard in Bay St. Louis at the end of Ulman Avenue, above, and deMontfuzin Street, below, were recently repaired and painted by city crews. The Sea Coast Echo published photographs in the May 30th issue which showed the dilapidated condition of the safety structures. The city is commended for improving the beachfront barricades which are now more visible to drivers and better looking.

NEWS FROM THE GOVERNOR'S OFFICE

The State of Mississippi has filed a motion in U.S. District Court in Greenville seeking a delay in the election primaries slated for June 15. This action was precipitated by the unreasonable delay of the United States Justice Department which turned down Mississippi's congressional redistricting plan only three days before the qualifying deadline.

After consultation with other state officials, including Attorney General Bill Allain, this action was taken to ensure the most economical, orderly and fair election process—one that will serve the best interests of the people of Mississippi.

There are three unassailable reasons to hold the judicial, congressional and U.S. Senate primaries simultaneously. First, state law mandates that the primaries for state judicial offices and the U.S. Senate must be held on the same date as primaries for the U.S. Congress. Second, the cost of holding more than one set of primaries would be prohibitive. It is conservatively estimated that holding an extra set of primaries could cost local taxpayers at least an additional $1 million. This is not a burden that should be placed on the people of Mississippi. It is imperative that we hold the primary costs to a minimum. Third, and finally, a great deal of unnecessary confusion and complication would result from requiring voters to have to go to the polls on two different days.

Let it be clearly understood that the only reason for this action is the unjustifiable delay of the U.S. Justice Department in acting on Mississippi's congressional redistricting plan. This delay made it impossible to hold congressional elections on June 1. All of us want the primaries conducted on June 1 and the U.S. Justice Department bears full responsibility for our inability to conduct them on that date.

CONSUMER REPORT

SIGNING DEEDS OF TRUST

Attorney General Bill Allain is warning consumers to be careful when signing contracts and other documents for major purchases before reading the agreement, thoroughly. According to Allain, homeowners may unknowingly sign deeds of trust against their property.

A deed of trust constitutes an alien against property and could result in the beneficiary taking possession of the property.

The Consumer Protection Division of the Attorney General's Office has received numerous complaints during the past few weeks from consumers who have unknowingly signed deeds of trust on their property to secure financing for burglar bars, window blinds, and other major home improvements.

The Federal Truth-in-Lending Act requires that a separate disclosure statement on a consumer credit transaction be provided when purchasing goods or services for which the seller requires a deed of trust. A 3-day period within which the consumer may cancel the contract must also be provided.

Allain says that if you have been victimized by this unscrupulous practice you should notify the Consumer Protection Division, P.O. Box 220, Jackson, Mississippi 39205. Telephone: (601) 961-4224.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas J. Williams of Bay St. Louis. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Edward Whavers Jr., also of Bay St. Louis.

A Nuptial Mass was celebrated by Rev. Bernard Keller, Very Rev. Francis Theriault and Very Rev. Terry Steib.

Scripture readings were rendered by Clementine Williams, sister of the bride. Offertory gifts were presented by the parents of both the bride and groom.

The church was decorated with large standing brass baskets of white and blue gladioli, white carnations, baby's breath and Boston fern.

Musical selections were provided by Ken Baker of Dallas, Tex., vocalist, accompanied by Delbert Jones of New Orleans, organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of candlelight organza featuring a Queen Anne neckline, fitted bodice enhanced with Alencon lace, sequins and pearls, and long full sleeves of sheer organza fitted at the wrist and adorned with Alencon lace. The full hoop skirt was accented with Alencon lace and extended to a chapel length train. Her bridal hat was adorned with lace and seed pearls and held a veil of illusion bordered in Alencon lace. She wore a single strand of pearls, lent from her parents.

Emergency personnel complete medical training

Hancock County has 30 newly-trained emergency first responders, according to Dr. Bill Bradford, Hancock General Hospital emergency physician and newly-named member of the board of directors of the Mississippi Gulf Coast Emergency Medical Services District.

Classes were conducted at Waveland Community Center under auspices of Pearl River Junior College.

Bradford was the instructor for the 40-hour course, with textbooks furnished by the district.

Among the skills first responders become proficient in are advanced first aid, cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR), splinting, and emergency childbirth.

They also learn how to minimize patient suffering and how to prevent further injury until more highly trained emergency medical personnel arrive on the scene.

Final evaluation of the students was conducted by Drs. Helen McGehee, J. R.

Lee, Tom Flores, Bradford,
Joe Nordruft, Sidney Chevis,
and J. D. Rutherford

THE HOTTER IT GETS,
THE HARDER YOUR AIR CONDITIONING WORKS.

It's an uncomfortable fact of life that the higher the temperature rises, the harder your air conditioning works. Which means higher electricity bills.

At Mississippi Power, we're committed to giving you the power to help hold down your electricity bills. While there's not much we can do about the humidity, we can tell you how to help hold down the cost of your air conditioning.

- ▲ Set your thermostat at 78°.
- ▲ Use ceiling and room fans.
- ▲ Keep your shades and drapes drawn on the sunny side of the house.
- ▲ Caulk and weatherstrip your doors and windows to minimize cooling loss.
- ▲ Turn down your air conditioner when you're away from home.
- ▲ Always use your dryer and wash your laundry during the coolest part of the day.
- ▲ Call your electrician to check for any wiring problems that can lead to overheating.
